You can get a sexually transmitted disease from oral sex, manual sex (using your hands), anal sex, or intercourse. It is important to remember that if there is drug use, such as needle sharing, you can be exposed to HIV/AIDS or hepatitis. These diseases can be caught through dirty needles, without ever having sex. However, if you are not sexually active at all, or not a drug user, you should have little worry about STDs.

If you haven't had contact with the opposite sex then NO. People can have gonorrhoea of the throat, so if you get oral sex off a person with that current problem, you could contract gonorrhoea. But you cannot catch it off masturbating. So don't worry.

Well, You haven't come in contact with anyone else genitals you shouldn't get gonorrhea unless you kiss someone and they came in contact with it through other sexual acts.
